As Head of School at [School], I am delighted to recommend Candidate for the Business Administration program at Goldsmith University London. For the last two years, I have had the chance to observe Candidate grow and become an active participant both inside and outside the classroom. She has partaken in various activities which strengthen the school's community, such as serving as Top Pupil of her class to represent her pupils in the School's Council.

As a student, Candidate is known as meticulous and diligent. Indeed, she has been placed in the school's Honour Roll for the second consecutive year, a commitment to her studies which is similarly reflected in her predicted grades. Additionally, she has shown her passion for entrepreneurship through her participation in the school's Young Entrepreneur Fair, where she led her team in organising their business project of selling handmade bracelets and carrying out a pottery decoration class for interested attendees. Their commitment, impeccable organisation and team spirit even won them the bronze medal of the night, a testament of her potential in the world of business.

I am deeply convinced that she is a highly qualified and multi-faceted candidate that would be a valuable asset to your university, particularly due to her empathy and dedication to make the world a better place. Candidate has had ample experience in volunteering, both for local shelters and charities. For example, she has volunteered in Barnardo's Children Charity, where she collects donations, tidies the shop, and helps individuals who come in to find the articles they need. Additionally, she participated in the school's charity project to raise funds for Ukraine, where she collected food and essential article donations from the local community, ultimately leading to the shipping of four big packages of aid. Watching her develop, with her unconventional curiosity, confidence and openness has made clear to me that young people can really build a better world.

In the fields of sports, Candidate has represented the school in multiple Sports Days, where he has taken part in both volleyball and football. Her enthusiasm and willingness to go the extra mile was fundamental to maintain team morale even when matches were lost. Indeed, her dedication to excellence has won her the Player of the Match award in various occasions when she has displayed her talent.

Regarding interpersonal relations, she is a well-liked and respected student amongst both teachers and pupils. She is respectful, passionate, helpful and open.

Overall, I am deeply convinced that Candidate will excel as a student at Goldsmith's University. I sincerely recommend her as a great addition to the student body.
