

For the purpose of this letter, the name has been replaced with “Candidate”.

It is with the greatest pleasure that I recommend Candidate to study Psychology at Yale University. I have been a teacher of Candidate since year 10, being his form teacher through his GCSEs and psychology teacher at A-Level in years 12 and 13.

Through these years, it has become clear to me that Candidate is an outstanding student and individual. His commitment towards his studies, and Psychology in particular, is remarkable. Currently, he has shown concept awareness and evaluative skills in his studies of social conditioning and socialisation. His passion for the subject is evident in his reports which bring in further reading on the impact of poor socialisation on the development of the child and a potential link to increased deviancy.

As an exemplar student, Candidate has been chosen to represent the school at an inter-school research exposition, where he delivered a presentation on the impact of social media on one's life satisfaction. These achievements make me confident that Candidate will be a great addition to the Psychology faculty, always striving to follow his curiosity and use the tools available to him to deepen the knowledge available on preconceived ideas.

Alongside Psychology, Candidate is also an excellent student in his A-level Mathematics and Economics, even achieving an A in his AS exams. The combinations of these subjects place him at an advantageous position to develop his knowledge in some of the modules offered at Yale, including Psychology and Global Capitalism.

Outside of academics, he is a pillar to the school community and those around him. He has been selected head boy for his year group twice in a row and is currently the serving head of the Debate Mate society, a group dedicated to fostering intellectual discussions and widening our perceptions of knowledge.

Beyond this, he is also an outstanding lacrosse player who plays for the school's first team as well as his local club. Indeed, he has played a crucial role in helping the school's team win the regional inter-collegial championship of the present year and was even selected as man of the match for two of the matches.

Candidate is a well-rounded and ambitious individual who emerges himself in the community and intellectual environments around me. There is no doubt he will be a great fit at Yale University.

Do let me know if there are any other questions where I may be of any help.
