

For the purpose of this letter, the actual name was replaced with “Candidate”.

As a Political Science Professor at University of Jan Kochanowski, I am writing to you in order to support Candidate candidacy to your University. I have had the pleasure of working with Candidate at a Political Science department for the period of 6 months during which I had a chance to get to know him as an outstanding individual and an excellent student who, in my opinion is academically equipped to be a part of your University.

I met Candidate in the middle of June 2020, when he became a part of Political science research team at Jan Kochanowski University in Kielce as a result of my invitation. Right from the moment he was welcomed in our team, Candidate made a stunning impression both on me and the other members of the staff with his charisma, confidence and the knowledge he presented during the first interaction. Political Science Department board instantly decided that Candidate had crucial characteristics for joining our university research group and be a part of the newest project.

The team of three researchers was chosen to produce a work concerning the effects of Coronavirus pandemic in Southern Europe - myself, Candidate and Professor Rafal Dudala. The fruit of our co-operation was an article titled "Iberian Scenarios. Pandemic as a catalyst of changes in socio-economic systems of Portugal and Spain". Candidate contribution to the article was more than significant. Due to his language and research skills, Candidate conducted majority of the foreign press research, and was the person that could directly work with primary sources. He performed quantitative data analysis, which in a later stage of the research became an essential part of the entire work. In the final stage of the research, Candidate again proved his versatility, and translated entire article into English language.

During the time I have had a pleasure to co-operate with Candidate, he demonstrated his academic excellence, knowledge and showed that already at this stage of his education (Undergraduate Student) he is equipped with tools that allow him to work on a scientific research. The work and performance of Candidate was judged as outstanding. As a colleague, he was professional, punctual, responsible, motivated and extremely passionate about the work he had done. As a researcher, not only he did fantastic, but also the analysis he produced certainly exceeded the level of an undergraduate student. Throughout my career as a Professor at University of Jan Kochanowski, I have seen multiple example of exceptional individuals, although it rarely happens that one makes such an outstanding impression on me as Candidate did.

Because of the above-mentioned factors, I would like to recommend you Candidate as a perfect candidate for your University. Candidate is a youthful, motivated and passionate student, who can undoubtedly contribute to your University, due to his academic excellence and extraordinary personal traits. If there are any questions concerning Candidate, please do not hesitate to contact me.
